

The International Law Society at New England Law | Boston invites you to join us for our International Law Practitioner Series:

The Rule of Law, Guns, and Gadgets: Development in a Hostile World

Presented by Vilas S. Dhar

As a lawyer and entrepreneur promoting the development of socially conscious technologies and their implementation in the emerging world, Vilas Dhar has experienced the challenges faced by legal practitioners, engineers, and business owners bringing critical products and processes to troubled regions.

Drawing on his observations in over 65 countries working on projects ranging from microfinance to refugee rights to rural health care initiatives, Mr. Dhar will describe the modern context of private international law and share his experiences counseling, financing, and directing companies creating development focused technologies such as alternative power, solar water purification devices, and micro insurance structures in South Asia, Africa, and the Caribbean – with reflections on personal encounters with corruption and chaos along the way.

Mr. Dhar is a partner and co-founder at Dhar Law, LLP (<http://www.dharlawllp.com>), a Boston based law firm with a strong commitment to community lawyering.

Thursday, April 21, 2011 from 4:30-6 p.m.

Cherry Room, Second Floor in the Library

This is a catered event. Food will be provided.

Immediately following the event, join us for the unofficial ILS end of year party!
Location TBA at the event.